COLLEGE REUNION TO BE AN ANNUAL AFFAIR BY VOTE

Fine Gathering of Ex-students Here Over End of Week.

The three days reunion of members of the faculty and students of the Dixon College and Normal School, which closed Sunday evening, was marked not only by the unbounded enthusiasm of its participants, but also by the unusual number which assembled at Assembly Park, nearly 600 gathering to do honor to their alma mater. Many distant states were represented, among them Oklahoma and Oregon.

Before the members of the throng went their various ways on Sunday evening a resolution had been drafted and adopted to the effect that, although the college walls no longer resound to the cheerful stir and life of educational activity as of old, its student body should each year make Dixon a point of pilgrimage for the yearly reunion and renewal of old-time ties.

Friday's program was carried out most pleasantly, beginning with dinner at the Assembly Park Hotel, an interesting feature of which was individual reports from everyone in attendance.

Prof. Dille Was Here

On Saturday, the day being fine, at an early hour a large crowd assembled for chapel exercises which closed with speeches from members of faculty in attendance. Former President J. B. Dille had charge of the program and all greatly enjoyed the entertaining and amusing incidents of "early days" related by him. At 11 o'clock a long line of cars, headed by Dr. E. S. Murphy and E. H. Brewster, started for Hazelwood, where all enjoyed the beauty and charm of that lovely spot. They visited the quaint cabin and gloried in the view of the river and forest from its rolling lawns. Miss Louise Brewster served lemonade under the giant old trees.

At noon the party sought Lovell Park, making a tour of its winding drives and later partaking of a most luscious lunch served in the pavilion by Mrs. Graybill. Early in the afternoon the party went to Grand Detour by boat and automobile where various points of interest were visited, among them the old home of the John Deere family.

Much Fun At Banquet

At 7 p. m. the reunionists gathered at the Assembly Park Hotel for the banquet, which was made the occasion of much jollity and good cheer. Professor Strong at the piano led in the singing of old songs in which he was ably assisted by Martin Gannon and the chorus of some forty well-trained voices, entertaining those at the tables throughout the evening. A business meeting closed the day's program. Dixon is glad and happy to greet these returning students of an institution which has ceased to exist and the citizens will doubtless increasingly lend their aid year by year to make these reunions more and more successful.

The lion's share of the credit for this year's reunion, the most successful since the gatherings were started, is unstintingly given by the students to Dr. E. S. Murphy, who, although one of Dixon's busiest men, found time to direct the activities which proved so pleasurable.

French Aviators Bombed Riff Camps Last Night

Fez, French Morocco, Aug. 10.—(AP)—French aviation squadrons bombed thirteen encampments of the rebellious Rifians last night. Two flying columns have cleared the region of Djebel Amseft.

Detachments of Spanish artillery and a Spanish war plane have prevented a Rifian column from crossing the Loukkos river.

C. C. Godfrey, Pioneer, Called Sunday Evening

Charles C. Godfrey, one of Dixon's few remaining pioneers and a member of one of the city's oldest families, passed away at his home, 612 Peoria ave., his passing being quite sudden. Funeral arrangements had not been completed at an early hour this afternoon, and announcement of these and the obituary will be published later.

125 Killed in Accidents in 11 Mid-West States

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(AP)—One hundred and twenty persons were killed in automobile accidents in eleven mid-western states, an increase of a score from the previous week. The death list in Ohio was 31, while 20 fatalities were recorded in Illinois, mostly in Chicago and vicinity. Seven were killed in Iowa and 15 in Indiana.

The other week end casualties were not so heavy as usual. Eleven were killed at various points in Iowa; two met death in Chicago, bringing the death toll for the year here to 448 and a woman was killed near Greenfield, Illinois.

Three bathing fatalities were reported at Chicago.

FRUSTRATED IN ATTEMPT TO ROB ASHTON STATION

Two Would-be Thieves Frightened Away Sunday Morn

(Telegraph Special Service)

Ashton, Aug. 10.—Two strangers who drove into Ashton at a late hour Saturday night attempted to burglarize the freight house at the Northwestern depot about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, but were frightened away after they had effected an entrance. E. A. Saunders, in charge of the Northwestern pumping station, went to the depot to attend to some freight bills which were being turned over by the crew of an east bound train which was switching in the yards.

The bills are placed in a small wooden box at the depot and Mr. Saunders had just attended to this, when the lid of the box dropped and two men, one carrying a flash light, dashed out of the freight house. They ran through the business part of the city and are believed to have escaped in a waiting automobile. Deputy Fred Richardson was summoned and an investigation developed nothing missing from the freight house. Entrance had been gained by forcing the lock on the door.

A short time before the two men dashed out of the freight house, two young men went to the telephone office and put in a long distance call for a Chicago party. The night operator overheard their conversation after leaving the office, one of the pair, suggesting that they go to the Northwestern depot, and adding that he knew all about its location.

CHASES MAN WHO STOLE TIRE OFF HIS CAR SUNDAY

Theft, During Sunday Morn Service, Got Thief in Jail.

Sheriff Risley was called to Sublette this morning to take in custody, a stranger, giving the name of Cleave Jones and claiming Champaign, Ill., as his home, who is said to have confessed to the sheriff of having stolen a tire from Rev. John S. Hopkins' automobile at Sublette, and who is also charged with possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor on a public highway.

It appears that during the regular service at the Sublette church Sunday morning Jones, who was driving south through the village, decided that he needed a tire to replace a bad one. He picked out the pastor's car, parked at the church, and is alleged to have removed the spare tire and to have driven south of the new route 2 paving. At the conclusion of the church service, Rev. Hopkins discovered the loss of the tire and was told by a member of the congregation who had overheard the stranger at work removing the tire, that a suspicious man had driven south of the village.

Rev. Hopkins followed and about a mile and one-half from the village found Jones engaged in changing tires on his car. The minister notified the stranger that he was suspected of having stolen the tire, whereupon Jones is said to have forcibly resisted the accusation. The best of the argument, which was limited, and Jones was finally notified that he would necessarily have to return to Sublette and there it would develop whether or not the tire he possessed was a stolen one or not.

Rev. Hopkins returned to Sublette with Jones and it is said to have developed that the tire was the one stolen from the pastor's car. Jones was placed in the village lock up and while the town marshal was discussing the case with the sky pilot, a suspicious sound was heard from the cell room. This was investigated and Jones was found to be in the act of taking a drink of liquor from a pint bottle. When searched he was found to be carrying two pint bottles of the liquor which were taken from him and this morning turned over to Sheriff Risley. Jones is now in the county jail and will probably be held to the September grand jury.

A. F. Kuhn, Supt. of Cab Co., Died Sunday

Alexander F. Kuhn, 117 E. Fourth street, superintendent of the American Body & Cab Co. of this city since its organization, passed away at the Dixon hospital Sunday noon after an illness of about two weeks duration. No funeral services will be held in this city, the remains to be taken to Chicago, his former home, for burial in Graceland cemetery there; but friends can view the remains at the Staples-Moyer chapel until early tomorrow morning.

Mr. Kuhn, who came to Dixon as superintendent of the American Wagon Co., which was succeeded by the American Body & Cab Co., was born in Chicago Nov. 2, 1865, being nearly 60 years of age at the time of his passing. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Foster G. and Curtis W., both at home. He had a host of friends in Dixon who will mourn his death and tender condolence to the bereaved family.

Boulogne, France, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Miss Lillian Harrison, Argentine swimmer began her fourth attempt to swim the English Channel, starting from Cape Gris-Nez at 12:12 this afternoon. The weather was becoming cloudy and there was a slight breeze. The sea was calm.

When Miss Harrison was a little more than a mile from shore a storm broke with heavy rain falling. The wind was increasing with white caps showing. Conditions were steadily growing worse.

Miss Harrison was four miles out from Gris-Nez at 3:25 after she had been more than three hours in the water struggling valiantly against abominable weather conditions.

NERVOUS THIEF GOT $12,000 IN CHGO. THEATER

Held Up State-Lake as 3500 Patrons Watched Performance.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A nervous robber, whose voice trembled and whose automatic pistol shook, held up the State-Lake Theater last night and escaped with $12,000 while 3,500 persons were viewing the show. Escaping six men and a girl cashier to remain quiet while he stuffed currency from the theater safe into a paper bag, the thief darted into one of the aisles and disappeared in the darkness of the theater. Detectives watched all exits, but victims of the holdup man were unable to point him out.

The thief stepped into the theater office with an "stick 'em up" command. Edwin Burke, the theater director, recalled that an act in which one of the players made use of a property automatic pistol, was about to go on, and believing that a practical joke was being played, laughed. A gruff command, however, silenced him.

The intruder compelled the opening of the safe and discharging $2,000 in silver because it "was too heavy," scooped up the available bills.

BELGIUM OPENS NEGOTIATIONS TO FUND WAR DEBTS

Conference Began in Washington for That Purpose Today.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Belgium will honor all her just obligations but will ask its creditors to take into consideration exceptional war and post-war conditions, Baron de Cartier, the Belgian ambassador declared today in presenting the Belgian debt commissions to the American commission.

Replying, Secretary Mellon, chairman of the American commission, said the United States would not aid Belgium to do the impossible but that the funding of the debt would be a recognition of the integrity of international obligations and "the settlement of a question which might disturb the long friendship of our nations."

The exchanges took place at the first meeting of the two commissions which will attempt to work out a formula for settlement of the debt.

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Preliminary steps to the actual negotiations looking to the refunding of Belgium's $439,000,000 war debt to the United States occupied the attention today of the American and Belgian debt commissions.

Called in their first session, the commission's program included exchange of courtesies between the chairmen, Ambassador De Cartier for Belgium and Secretary Mellon for the United States.

While the sessions will be continued daily, some time must elapse before the actual negotiation stage is reached.

The American commissioners approach the negotiations with a desire to go just as far as possible to meet the terms that Belgium will present. Belgium now becomes the second of the countries with which the United States was allied in the great war to actually negotiate for the funding of its war obligation. Great Britain's debt was refunded several years ago.

Dixon Men Get Into Trouble in Mendota

(Telegraph Special Service)

Mendota, Aug. 10.—Fred McGarvey and John Nagle, both of Dixon, were arrested Sunday morning about 1:30 when the former stopped his car in the middle of the paving on route two in the north part of town and blocked traffic in both directions. Police said that both men were in a highly intoxicated condition. They were held until this morning when they were taken into court. A charge of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition was lodged against McGarvey, who was still in custody for failure to furnish bond and who was held to the grand jury. Nagle was fined $5.00 and costs in police court on a charge of being intoxicated which he paid and was released.

STRIKE OF HARD COAL MINERS ON SEPT. 1 OUTLOOK

Suspension of Work in Mines Likely; Govt. Not to Step In.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Suspension of work by 153,000 men in the hard coal fields September 1, appeared more certain today following publication of a reply from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, to the letter recently addressed him by Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the Anthracite Operators Conference.

Mr. Warriner's letter, made public Thursday, denied that the operators' committee was under instructions to refuse concessions to miners regardless of the merit or logic of their demands, and expressed hope that "means will be found to compose the differences between us and avoid a suspension of operations."

Mr. Lewis said the Warriner letter merely confirmed the previous position taken by the operators' scale committee in the conferences here. He said both Mr. Warriner and the negotiators were committed against granting the miners wage increases and the check-off.

"Be it so," Mr. Lewis said. "We do not have any inclination to further argue when judgment has been given. I will be glad to hear from you when you abandon this position."

Hope of averting a hard coal tieup apparently rests today upon two chances.

One would be for the government to intervene, which Secretary of Commerce Hoover said the government will not do.

The other would be for the Anthracite Mine Owners to abandon their position as Mr. Lewis suggested.

MILLIONAIRE TO SEEK ANNULMENT OF RELATIONSHIP

Browning Charges Mary Spas Was Fraudulent in Her Statement.

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Mary Louise Spas Browning kicked off her Cinderella's slipper and left her millionaire foster father, Edward W. Browning, to make her own way, by writing her fairy story for a newspaper for $500 and probably acting in the movies.

She didn't even say good bye last night. The clothes she wore were those given her by Mr. Browning. She took them, she said, only because she had nothing else to wear. She left the fifty frocks, strings of pearls and other articles.

"I spent $20,000 trying to make that girl my foster-daughter," Mr. Browning said.

"I had confidence in her to the very last. But her age defeats the sole purpose for which I adopted her—to be a companion for my 10-year old daughter, Dorothy Browning."

"Will I adopt another? Absolutely never. I am through trying to do good for people. She is the smartest actress in New York."

To Annul Adoption

Mr. Browning said that today he would seek to annul the adoption on grounds of fraud so that Mary could have no claim on his fortune. Yet, he said he would do all he could to help her make her way.

When Mr. Browning made up his mind that she must leave, Mary and her maids were sent to the home of Robert H. Lunnet to escape publicity.

"He's my best friend," Mary said of the literary agent. "The world has been making me suffer and now I'm going to get even and make them suffer. I haven't any money, but (pointing to Mr. Browning) I will fight him."

The disillusioned fairy God-father, was not so resigned about the attempt to take little Dorothy Suphine from him. Bird S. Coler, commissioner of public welfare, was to confer today with Dorothy's foster mother, Mrs. Anna St. John of Hyde, N. Y., who had complained that Browning's adoption of a 21-year old girl was evidence that he was not a fit guardian for Dorothy.

Friends Consider Fine Memorial for Commoner

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Although little less than a week has elapsed since he was laid to rest, friends of William J. Bryan are considering the erection of a suitable monument to replace the wooden slab that now marks his grave in Arlington National Cemetery.

The will of the Commoner probated Saturday in Miami, Fla., made a provision for the use of such sum as his wife and children may deem proper for the purchase of a monument to mark his grave.

That this bequest, however, will be supplemented by the contributions from his many friends and admirers, seems most probable.

The will of the Commoner filed with characteristic Bryan phrases, and idealisms, many requesting that the monument be placed at his grave, heads friends here to think that the funds collected in a nation-wide campaign will be added to the memorial to be erected eventually in or near Arlington Cemetery.

Mother Thinks Her Son Killed While He Slept

Parkersburg, Iowa, Aug. 10.—(AP)—That Warren Vandervoort, 17, shot and killed his father, Rev. R. J. Vandervoort, Methodist Episcopal pastor, and seriously wounded his mother here Thursday night "while he was asleep" is the contention of Mrs. Vandervoort.

She made this statement to B. H. Brauer, county attorney who questioned her concerning the reported quarreling in the family that Warren contends was a contributing cause for the shooting.

Indications are that Mrs. Vandervoort will recover.

Warren refuses to see visitors.

TAX REDUCTION OF $300,000,000 MAY BE POSSIBLE

Army and Navy Likely to Bear Most of Budget Cut.

P. O. Department's Deficit is Great

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A cash deficit of $37,149,000, for the fiscal year of 1925 which closed last June 30 was announced today by the postoffice department after a preliminary compilation of receipts and expenditures made at the request of Postmaster General New.

Swampscott, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—President Coolidge today approved a tentative budget for next year's appropriations, calling for a reduction of $20,000,000 over this year.

Although the data was not made public, it is understood that the army and navy will bear a good portion of the cut. President Coolidge has declared he believed an adequate defense could be maintained at less expense.

The budget which is for $3,080,000,000, is only tentative and hearings will be held in the fall before final figures are presented to congress.

On a basis of a surplus of $250,000,000 in the treasury on June 30 and an estimated surplus of $200,000,000 for this fiscal year, Director Lord of the budget informed the President that he believed tax reductions amounting to at least $300,000,000 would be warranted.

Increased appropriations are accounted for in the new budget for some bureaus. Mr. Lord said, but these will be offset by heavier slashes in the funds to be allowed other government departments.

TAMMANY SPLIT OVER NOMINEES FOR MAYORALTY

Hylan's Wish for Another Term Meets Opposition.

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The split in the democratic organization of Greater New York, with Tammany opposing Mayor Hylan's aspirations for a third term, has assumed wider ramifications.

Influential members of the party in the Borough of Richmond, regarded as a Hylan stronghold, yesterday raised the banner of revolt against the mayoral nomination and announced intention of placing in the field candidates for Borough offices in opposition to the Hylan ticket.

The clear cut issue upon which the coming primary fight will be waged in Richmond, it was said, would be "shall Governor Smith or W. R. Hearst lead the democratic party in city and state."

Mayor Hylan yesterday denied charges that his split with Tammany was the result of disloyalty on his part.

State Senator J. J. Walker, Tammany nominee for Mayor, received an ovation yesterday at the Yankee Stadium where, 20,000 baseball fans applauded him as the "father of Sunday baseball."

The republicans today were to pick a fusion candidate for Mayor. Frank D. Waterman, fountain pen manufacturer, Gen. J. P. O'Ryan and former U. S. Senator Wm. W. Calder, were among those to be discussed.

Think Sesser Miner a Victim Black Handers

Benton, Ill., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Franklin County officials today were piecing together slender threads of evidence which they hoped would lead to the arrest of the slayer of George Jovanovich, Austrian coal miner, at Sesser.

Jovanovich was killed as he lay in bed at home early Sunday. His skull was hacked with a sharp hatchet.

Tony Grogan, a brother-in-law with whom the dead man was making his home, was questioned, but denied any guilt. He said he saw three armed men enter the house then run for help and when he returned found his brother-in-law slain. Officials said they were inclined to believe Jovanovich was the victim of a black hand plot.

Among those who talked were Ed. Hartwell, "Red" Peters and John Waggoner, confessed bad men; Frank Yule, prominent merchant, and Allan Whittenberg, banker, who was converted by Williams. Five "hit the trail" at the opening service here.

By birth the former speaker was a member of the Quaker Church of Guilford, N. C., where he was born 89 years ago. While he attended regularly and supported the local church, he never had been a member until now.

"PERFECT CRIME" BRINGS SUICIDE SUSPECTED MAN

Oakland Chemist, Who Killed Stranger, Shot Himself.

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 10.—(AP)—With Charles Henry Schwartz, dead by his own hand and his "too perfect" crime plot in complete collapse, police today worked to establish legal proof of the identity of the insurance hoax victim as G. W. Darbe, wandering lay minister of the Gospel.

Authorities feel the identification is virtually certain, but a few loose ends remain to be gathered. The end of the mystery came dramatically. Trapped in the apartment in which he had taken refuge the night of July 30 after setting fire to the laboratory of the Pacific Cellulose Company to cover up his crime, Schwartz sent a bullet through his brain. He chose death to capture and almost certain conviction.

When policemen knocked on his door, they heard a muffled shot and breaking in, found him dying.

An explanatory note addressed to his wife said the fugitive chemist had come to the point of saying goodbye because he had killed a stranger who had asked him for work and attacked him when refused.

Authorities believe their proof is complete that Schwartz planned the killing for months to defraud the insurance company out of more than $100,000 which he carried in favor of Mrs. Schwartz and the Cellulose company, in which she was a heavy stockholder.

Schwartz's identity became suspected by the Oakland apartment house proprietor.

Mrs. Schwartz, who had consistently maintained that the charred body found in the partially wrecked laboratory was that of her husband, fainted when informed that he had taken his own life. Police have been unable to determine whether she had acknowledged that he had not perished in the fire.

Text of His Letter.
A letter written to Mrs. Schwartz read:

"Last Monday or Tuesday I was in the lab. He came in. The man told me that if I did not give him work I had to give him money. He attacked me. I gave him a blow on the head. He was dead. I never thought for a moment to let go. I decided to run away, but made a dirty job of it. Can you imagine how I felt all the time feeling I have to lose you and the dead boys. Oh God, how I suffered."

"Now I wish to tell you, my dear little girl, I do not know the man, never looked how he was dressed."

"The only thing I did was I tried to burn him."

The blast occurred July 30 and the charred body found in the laboratory was at first believed to be Schwartz. Doubt as to the identity of the corpse crept into the case. Evidence indicating that the body was not that of the chemist continued to pile up and Aug. 4 Schwartz was charged with murder and search for him begun.

It has not been definitely determined to whom Mrs. Schwartz will receive insurance.

No Major Crimes in Herrin in Four Months

Herrin, Ill., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Although the August term of the Williamson County Court which convened today, at Marion faced an unusually heavy docket, States Attorney Arlie O. Boswell commented that not a single major criminal case had been filed from Herrin in the last four months.

Harrisburg, Ill., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Three hundred persons from Herrin Cove here last night to attend the initial service of the Howard S. Williams revival and representatives declared that Herrin, since the recent Williams campaign, there was the most Christian and peaceful city in the state. They said the work started by Williams was growing stronger daily with as many as 25 conversions in one night.

Among those who talked were Ed. Hartwell, "Red" Peters and John Waggoner, confessed bad men; Frank Yule, prominent merchant, and Allan Whittenberg, banker, who was converted by Williams. Five "hit the trail" at the opening service here.

THE DESTRUCTION OF

SENNACHERIB—

The Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold.

His cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;

And the sheen of their spears was like
stars on the sea,

When the blue waves roll nightly on deep Galilee.

Like the leaves of the forest when summer is green,

That host with their banners at sunset were seen;

Like the leaves of the forest when
Autumn hath blown,

That host on the morrow lay withered and brown.

For the Angel of Death spread his wings on the blast,

And breathed in the face of the foe as he passed;

And the eyes of the sleepers waxed deadly and chill,

And their hearts but once heaved and forever grew still!

And there lay the steed with his nostril all wide,

But thru it there rolled not the breath of his pride;

And the foam of his gasping lay white on the turf,

And cold as the spray of the rock-beating surf.

And there lay the rider distorted and pale,

With the dew on his brow and the rust on his mail;

And the tents were all silent, the banners alone,

The lances unlifted, the trumpet un-blown.

And the widows of Ashur are loud in their wail,

And the idols are broke in the temple
of Baal;

And the might of the Gentile, un-
smote by the sword,

Hath melted like snow in the glance of the Lord!

Lyndon Man Weds Prophetstown Lady

Charles Chamberlain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orton Chamberlain of Lyndon, and Miss Mildred Weberg, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Weberg of Prophetstown, were united in marriage Tuesday noon at the home of the bride, Rev. A. E. Beaumont of the Prophetstown Congregational church officiating in the presence of a few of the relatives and friends of the couple. The home was beautifully decorated for the wedding, the colors being white and yellow. The bride wore white Canton crepe with satin, white kid gloves, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and gladioli. The couple left that night on a wedding trip to Denver, and upon returning will go to farming near Lyndon.

AMAZING RETICENCE—

From a boy's essay—"The Sphinx is a woman with a great head. She hasn't talked for 3,000 years."—Boston Transcript.

ARE GUESTS AT HOME OF SISTER—

Mrs. Fred Warner and two children of Minneapolis, Minn., are guests of Mrs. Warner's sister, Mrs. George B. Shaw of Bluff Park.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, crisp graham toast, kaffies, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Cream of tomato soup, croquettes, stuffed cucumber salad, brown bread, cottage cheese, red raspberry and currant jelly, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Jellied bouillon, steamed halibut, shrimp sauce, baked potatoes, lima beans, fruit salad, toasted water crackers, Roquefort cheese, rye bread, milk, coffee.

Children under six years of age should not be served the luncheon salad, the shrimp sauce nor the Roquefort cheese. However, a well balanced and varied diet is provided for them without the forbidden foods.

The stuffed cucumber is a bit out of the ordinary and might be served at a high tea during the summer months.

Stuffed Cucumber Salad.

Two short cucumbers, 1/2 cup diced sweetbreads, 4 tablespoons minced raw carrot, 1/2 cup green peas, mayonnaise to make moist.

Pare cucumbers and cut in halves. Scoop out seeds leaving a cup. The sweetbreads should be boiled and blanched before dicing. Combine sweetbreads, carrot and peas with mayonnaise to make moist. Fill cucumber cups with mixture. Serve on a bed of shredded lettuce and garnish with radish roses and celery curls.

The cucumbers should be thoroughly chilled before using.

FASHION HINTS—

Very Striking Effect.

An attractive dye coat is of black kasha cloth lined with red with one large pocket of red embroidery.

All In White.

A white chiffon dance frock, with a very full skirt is trimmed with garlands rather aimlessly scattered about.

In Blue and White.

A novel sport hat is of white leather trimmed with dark blue kid.

In Geometrical Patterns.

Bits of steel and copper arranged in geometrical shapes and designs are very smart on coats and tailors.

Light in Weight.

An interesting effect is achieved by pleating georgette crepe capes and binding them with fluffy fur.

Modern Tendency.

Cubistic figures in exotic colors are printed on kasha cloth and made into sport frocks.

TO ENTERTAIN AT BREAKFAST TUESDAY—

Mrs. George Hawley will entertain with breakfast Tuesday morning at the Dixon Country Club, for Mrs. Hugh Lynch.

CYNTHIA GREY SAYS—

We Should Employ Changes in Styles to Best Advantage.

Two missionaries, for 12 years residents of the African hinterlands among aboriginal and savage tribes, came back recently and, looking up on our modern maid and youth, were horrified into front-page heavy material and the strange hair general behavior.

And they extended their amazement not only to the maids, but the matrons as well.

What, they asked, would the average savage think of all this?

My immediate reaction is that he wouldn't think much about it—might, in fact, utter a single "Ugh!"—and that, realizing his particular background, it wouldn't make much difference what he thought, anyhow. And that is presuming a capacity to think logically.

But it does make a difference what people, absent from our shores for a dozen or two dozen years, think about us and see in us.

That makes a valuable study in perspective!

EDGAR A. BANCROFT, DIPLOMAT.

Edgar A. Bancroft was known to people of Illinois chiefly as a corporation lawyer. His career in that capacity was during a long period when such a lawyer of necessity also was a diplomat. Sometimes legal knowledge that enables one to circumvent statutes is required by large institutions. At other times the diplomat is most serviceable.

It was this training that enabled Mr. Bancroft to enter Japan at a time when there was dissatisfaction over the Japanese exclusion act and to calm the troubled waters.

Japanese leaders in thought and statesmanship, when they speak for American consumption, have made extra effort to lead us to believe that friendship between the two nations is desired, regardless of the act of congress distasteful to them. Perhaps they would have done that without the presence of Mr. Bancroft and his diplomacy. Yet, another man might have disturbed the waters instead of calming them.

It is impossible to read the declarations of Japanese statesmen concerning the death of Ambassador Bancroft without finding in them a note of sincerity, not merely a note of diplomatic language. So much would not need to be said were it not for the fact that both countries have groups of persons determined to foment strife and enmity between them. Existence of such groups makes the language of the Japanese statesmen appear all the stronger.

Premier Kato, head of the Japanese government, made the following statement:

"News of the death of the American ambassador comes as a staggering blow. Since he assumed his duties here, he had endeared himself to all of us and had shown himself a true friend to the Japanese people. He worked body and soul for the promotion of the traditional American-Japanese friendship. It is difficult for me to find words adequate to express our regret. Through the death of the ambassador, America has lost a great servant and this country has lost a friend."

Foreign Minister Shidehara, with whom all diplomatic relations were carried on is equally forceful in his statement on this occasion. He said:

"I find it difficult to express myself on the sense of shock and grief that has followed the death of the American ambassador. Only yesterday we received the cheering news of his improvement and looked forward to his restoration to active duties. In his service here, he not only endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact by his sympathy, enthusiasm and readiness to accept other points of view than his own, but he won universal respect by the clearness of his mind and the steadiness of his purpose. He already had made a place distinctly his own in the history of American-Japanese relations, and his loss from their service can not be described fairly as anything but tragic. We mourn him sincerely as a friend and as a devoted, distinguished servant to our common cause for pacific understanding."

LABOR HOLDS POST MORTEM.

In its declaration of a political policy the executive council of the American Federation of Labor holds a post mortem examination of returns of the LaFollette campaign of 1924 and declares third party movements failures. It cites experiences of 1912 and 1924 and declares that labor is off forever more.

"The American Federation of Labor nonpartisan political policy in the future will be along the usual definitely outlined plan," says the statement.

The federation lost its head, when it attempted to plunge itself into the LaFollette campaign, which was put together like a crazy quilt. The campaign was an appeal to elements whose only common ground was LaFollette. Separated from him they were as far apart as the poles.

The campaign consisted of an effort to put over higher wages for railroad men, by whatever name the movement may be called, and at the same time to draw in the discontented farmer. These men were supposed to have a common ground. What are the cold facts? The minute the railroads ask for an increase in freight rates the farmers are the first to send their organizations to the front to oppose the request. Freight rates and wages of railroad men are linked inseparably. Yet the farmer and the railroad man were to ride the same horse. They were supposed to be going in the same direction. They have awakened to find themselves going in opposite directions.

Of such was the third party movement made, and the American Federation of Labor had enough of it. It was disclosed that the federation could not deliver in such a situation.

It is the conclusion of the executive council that the previous policy of the organization was wiser. It says:

"The executive council believes that as a result of its nonpartisan political policy the launching of third party movements has been proved wasted effort and injurious to the desire to elect candidates with favorable records. The 1912 and 1924 political campaigns definitely determined this fact. Experience, therefore, has taught labor that to be successful politically it must continue as in the past to follow its nonpartisan political policy."

More cotton goes into automobile tires than into dresses. The next time the south undertakes to revive its industry it may adopt the slogan, "Buy a tire," instead of "Buy a bale."

There is only one argument against the Coolidge-Mellon plan to reduce the surplus on the higher incomes. That is the argument against capitalism itself.

If we are going to have capitalism, we must let it capitalize itself; otherwise all the people, and particularly the laborers, will suffer.

The most available source for any sort of recapitalization, and the only proper source for capitalization involving enterprise and risk, is the surplus of the larger incomes. Without capitalization, and recapitalization, industry stagnates.

To penalize these incomes, in excess of their fair contribution to the necessary public revenues, is to deprive industry of its most essential fuel. That is to say, these things are no under capitalism.

The Socialist, who wishes to undermine our present capitalist civilization, in the interest of substituting what he thinks would be a better one, may logically oppose the principle of the proposed change. No one else should.

SAVING THE AMBASSADOR A LITTLE, ANYHOW

Americans in Paris celebrated the Fourth of July by a reception in the new American embassy, the first building this nation has owned for diplomatic use in France. Ambassador Herlick, by advancing the money himself during a period of low exchange, without waiting for the slow process of the American Congress, got the house for $200,000, though its original cost was much more.

It is a good house, but no better than much poorer nations have thought it a good investment to supply for the purposes of their embassies, and no better than we ourselves have expected our ambassadors to supply at their own expense.

Henceforth, our ambassador to France will at least have a house to move into when he reaches Paris, and will not have to spend twice his salary for rent.

WHY NOT GIVE HIM AN EXPENSE ACCOUNT?

But the problem of choosing ambassadors for their talents rather than for their wealth is not yet solved. What boots it to give a man a house to live in, rent free, if it is a house that can not be operated for less than several times the salary?

The present salary, just as salary, may be high enough. But if the recipient of it is condemned to live in a house that the salary will not run, he needs an expense allowance adequate to the house.

We do that for the president, because we understand the situation. We do not do it for ambassadors, because congressmen think their constituents do not understand the same situation regarding them.

WHY MARRIAGE OFTEN CAUSES HATRED

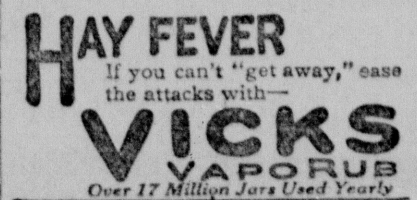

If you are shut up with the same person long enough, in relative isolation from others, you come finally either to love or to hate him. In difference is out of the question.

That is the reason why only love sanctifies marriage. It is the reason why Explorer MacMillan enjoins silence on his companions. If they let each other alone, they can endure each other through the long isolation. If they try to be intimate, they will first love and then hate each other.

Few of us have to face the ordeal of Arctic silence, but most of us are, or will be, married.

Moral: First, love your wife. Second, have each of you enough outside interests not to bore each other into loathing.

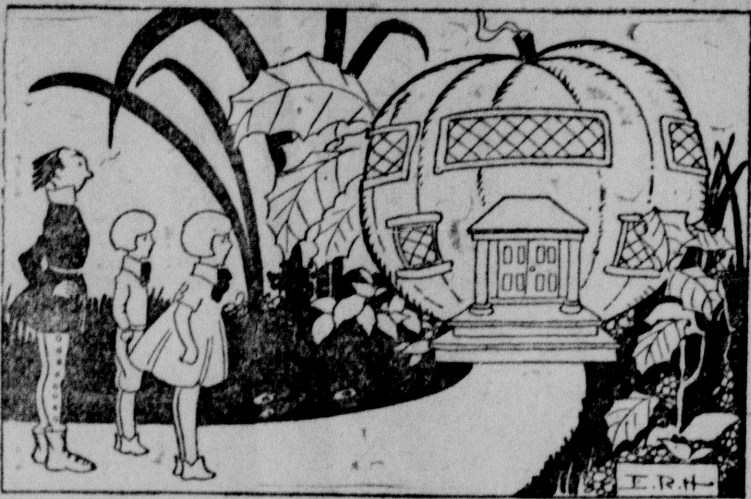

The fact that riches have wings seldom enables a fellow to feather his own nest.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 13—OFF TO DADDY GANDER LAND

It, too, liked like a pumpkin.

Juggle Jump and the Twins counted the buttons they had found.

"There are three more somewhere," said Juggle Jump, "and we must find them as soon as possible."

"Where have you looked?" asked the Man-in-the-Moon.

The Twins counted up on their fingers.

"We've looked in Squeezle Land and Yum Yum Land and Lost Land, and all sorts of places," said Nick.

"Have you looked in Daddy Gander Land yet?" asked the Man-in-the-Moon.

Juggle Jump looked at the Twins and they looked at Juggle Jump.

"Why, we never thought of that," they exclaimed. "Thank you."

So bidding good-bye to the Moon Man and the Dream Maker Man, and his three sons, Snoodle and Snuggle and Snore—Juggle Jump touched one of his magic buttons and the three travelers stepped from the moon down to the earth, where they immediately set out for Daddy Gander Land as fast as they could go.

They went along Broom Street until they came to Pippin Hill. Then they crossed Pippin Hill and came to the large pumpkin house of Peter Peter and his wife.

"The Peterses had recently moved from their small pumpkin-shell house into a cottage."

It, too, looked like a pumpkin, but it was made of real boards and had rooms and floors and closets and all. And Mrs. Peter had learned to be a very good housekeeper indeed. The

THE TANGLE

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH BURKE—CONTINUED

The whole thing worked out splendidly, Ruth, with one or two hitched which were smoothed out with little trouble. Jack played up to me beautifully. I never knew he was such a good actor before. Every little while I get a view of an entirely new Jack—a man I do not know at all.

He doesn't seem to have the capability of bringing out any playfulness in me. I am always serious when I am with him. Perhaps if I had played more with him he would be happier with me.

I remember a woman friend of mine who was much older who told me when I was first married: "Don't ever let your husband come to regard you as he looks upon the oatmeal and cream and egg that he eats as a matter of course because it is filling and he can eat it in a hurry before catching the car."

Rather make him understand you can be and usually are the champagne and sweetbreads and truffles that are served at dinner when the work is done and he settles himself down for a good time."

I presume I am the three-minute egg and oatmeal that Jack consumes every morning, and he has come to think I am quite as monotonous. In the future I will try and be gayer. Come over and help me to do it. Ruth. You are a much gayer woman than I, and I am sure that Walter loves you for it.

Mr. Sartoris sent his wire to the house, and Jack pretended to be grouchy because it had not been sent to the office. I, suspecting nothing, explained, and was almost ready to quarrel with him because he would not accept my explanation.

Finally he clinched matters by saying that none of our friends would come on such short notice, and ended by making me a wager, which would amount to several hundred dollars, that the people I invited would not accept.

Of course they did accept, and said

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHRENS

As soon as we were seated, he asked me to tango with him, and while we were out on the floor he began to tell me about his early life, and how his mother had betrayed his father, and his wife, himself.

He had not finished the story when the music stopped and we stepped through the door to a balcony. I became so interested I guess we did stay out there under the moonlight sky a little longer than conventionality would approve.

We were just about to go in, and I had impulsively extended my hand in sympathy, and they were warmly clasped in his, when I heard someone say: "Leslie, do you not think we should better be going home."

TOMORROW—Letter from Leslie Prescott to Ruth Burke.

Some men go at their pleasure as though they mean business.

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

MONDAY, AUG. 10

If so, you are inclined to domineer. You like to tell others what to do. You decide quickly.

Often your judgment is questionable. You have enthusiasm. But lack perseverance.

You want immediate results. You have a good sense or humor. And musical talents.

You accept responsibilities. And can be trusted.

In love you are inconstant. You fall in love easily.

You are easily diverted. You are fond of luxury. And strive to attain it.

It is always easier to float a rumor than to sink one.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; but fools despise wisdom and instruction.—Proverbs 1:7.

In seeking wisdom thou art wise: in imagining that thou hast attained it thou art a fool.—Rabbi Ben Azai.

Do you think in dimes or in thousands of dollars

Ideas come first. Nowadays business plans before it acts. No business grows big until it is manned by men who think not in dimes but in thousands.

The small calibre man stays down. He never gets beyond a small job. Up above are the real jobs, always open to men who think success on a big scale—and who look the part.

The shabby man can't talk of large business plans, nobody believes in him. But the man whose looks inspire confidence—well, it's easy for him to get respectful hearing and a chance to do big things in business.

PIRATES AND NEW YORK TO MEET IN CRUCIAL GAMES

Four Game Series Between Rivals Opens This Afternoon.

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Baseball's interest today was focused upon the opening of a four game series between the Pirates and Giants at Pittsburgh.

Burdened by six straight defeats during the past week, the Giants yesterday turned the tables on the Reds, 5-4, after an eighth inning rally which netted three runs. However, the victory was partly offset by an injury to Frankie Frisch, short stop, who hurt his hand. Frisch may be out of the game for some time.

Cincinnati has jumped into the thick of the fight, trailing the Giants by only two and one-half games.

The Reds hooked up in a series with Pittsburgh after the New York club.

The Cubs, who checked out a double victory over the Braves, 8-1 and 13-3.

Two Long Games

Rogers Hornsby increased his home run crop to 23 for the season by helping himself to two in the victory over the Phillies, 8-4. He also hit a triple.

Two twelve inning games marked the events in the American League battle yesterday, the Indians subduing the Senators 7-6 and the Yankees losing to the White Sox 4-3.

Cleveland recorded 11 hits off Johnson and Marberry while the Senators counted 16 safeties off Smith.

Bobo Ruth was captured by Bob Veach in the 8th inning of the New York contest. The home run king is Thurston hurled for Chicago, and not feeling well.

Practically won his own game by tripping in the 7th to tie the score and singling in the 4th for the margin of victory.

Young Tennis Stars in National Championship

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The National Junior and Boys tennis championship opens today at the South Side Tennis Club with 107 entries.

Seeded number one, and ruling the outstanding favorite for the honors relinquished by George Lott, now fifth ranking player in the United States, was Cranston Holman of San Francisco.

In the opposite half of the draw from Holman is H. L. Johnson of Waban, Mass., who will have to play his way through a tough bracket.

At the top of the junior draw, is Walter Thomas of Elmora, N. J., with Frank Shields, New York's newest boy star in the opposite half.

The finals are on the program for Saturday.

Billy Wells Disappears: Called Case of "Run Out"

Chicago, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The disappearance of Billy Wells, British welterweight champion, who was to have met Mickey Walker, world's champion, in a ten round go at East Chicago, Ind., tonight, will be taken before the New York and California Boxing Commission in an effort to have Wells barred, his manager, Charles Harvey said today.

Although the bats of the Reds kept up an incessant tattoo yesterday they were unable to get in much effective work. They lost the final of the series to New York, 5-4, after making a clean sweep of the first four games.

Friberg, second baseman for the Phillies, was banished from the game yesterday for arguing with the umpire.

Mandy Brooks, until recently a batting ace in the American Association, came through yesterday with three clean clouts in the Cubs first game. He is again hitting them hard and timely after a long slump.

Rabbit Maraville, Cub manager, came out of the depths of a batting slump to garner three hits in yesterday's game.

Judge, first sacker of the Senators, collected five hits out of six times at the plate.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

WANTS BETTER SCHOOLS

To the Evening Telegraph—While touring the west this summer with mother and sister we had the opportunity of visiting many beautiful places and of passing through many cities about the size of Dixon. Being a student in the north side high school and interested in school work, the most natural thing for me to notice was the high school buildings in the various towns. While I do not believe we visited any city as beautifully situated as Dixon, yet I must say that of all the places the size of Dixon we did not find one that could not boast of high schools far in advance of our high schools in Dixon.

We had the pleasure of visiting with the president of the school board at Redkey, Calif., a town of 3,500 inhabitants, who have recently erected a $600,000 community high school of beautiful granite. This school is built in five unit buildings and it keeps and maintains eight auto busses to take the children from the rural districts to the school and return. They maintain a cafeteria for the convenience of the students, rural and local; and they teach, beside the regular college preparatory subjects, the following side subjects: auto mechanics, applied arts, wood working, mechanical drawing, designing art and have a modern five-room furnished apartment within the school where the girls are taught domestic science and housekeeping. They have an assembly hall which seats 1800 and a small theater room for class plays, operettas, etc. in which to raise money for the school activities. A modern gymnasium and swimming pool are also maintained.

It seems to me that if a town of 3,500 and the rural district surrounding can support a school of this proportion that good old Dixon with 10,000 and growing, should do something of a like nature for her sons and daughters. Isn't that food for thought for you daddies of Dixon? Me for Dixon now and always. Sincerely yours

Carl A. Buchner, Jr.

The Well-Dressed Man
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Striking Summer Scarfs
Creation was told in six hundred words. Yet, with due humility, it would be impossible to condense into six thousand the shimmer and splendor of the new summer scarfs in foudral, silks, poplin silks, crepe silks, bandanas, lincens, and even ginghamas. All the craving for color, which men have long repressed, is centering in their cravats, now that the lid is off and they may out-rainbow the rainbow and out-sunset the sunset. It is questionable whether the vociferously vivid effect one sees today are good style on all men. They are essentially young men's patterns. They must be properly harmonized or contrasted with shirts. They are more tastefully worn with dark-colored suits. They should not be attempted with too conspicuous effects in handkerchiefs, or the excess of color strikes a discordant skin to that of the Killenny cats.

How many summer scarfs should The Well-Dressed Man own? Observe, that summer scarfs are meant, not just scarfs, for there is just as much difference between a summer scarf and a winter scarf as between suits for the two seasons. A summer scarf must be cut of thin, light silk preferably printed, not woven, in bright colors. It must suggest coolness and crispness. It must tie into the long, narrow knot appropriate to go with the attached-collared shirt. It must not look bulky or heavy.

At least a dozen summer scarfs are required. Two dozen are not too many. Cravats are like friends—one more is always welcome. Choose distinctly different colors and patterns for the sake of variety, with a leaning toward blendings of blue, a color that mixes with almost any suit or shirt. If a scarf is intended to be worn at sports, it may be bolder in design and, like those illustrated here, may have aprons bordered in a solid color matching the color of the figures above.

To give light-weight summer scarfs more heft and body and to make them take a firmer, more graceful knot, they are frequently lined with silk, a luxurious touch. The diamond spot and scroll designs sketched alongside are old patterns which are only new in color. When a scarf is taken off, it should not be laid aside "as is," but smoothed to remove creases. This preserves its looks and prolongs its life. The finer the silk the more delicate it is and the greater care it requires.

MAY SEYMOUR FOOT LOOSE

by BEATRICE BURTON SEQUEL TO "The FLAPPER WIFE" ONEA

THE STORY SO FAR:

MAY SEYMOUR, whose husband, DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, killed himself because of her love affair with JIM CAREWE, returns to her home town after a year's absence.

Heavily veiled, she comes late one night to the home of her lawyer, DICK GREGORY, and GLORIA, his wife. She tells them how the ugly story of her past has followed her everywhere. And so she has made up her mind to go to Europe where no one will know her.

She asks ULYSSES X. FORGAN, a wealthy widower who is in the real estate business, to sell her house for her. Ulysses advises her to live in it, and live down her reputation among her own townspeople. But May tearfully insists that she wants to be footloose.

She tells Dick to sell her stocks and bonds for whatever they will bring. All she wants, she explains, is enough money to dress the part of a wealthy widow and "land" a rich husband.

A week later with $5000 in her handbag, May goes down to Atlantic City for a short rest. There she meets a divorcee, MRS. CARLOTTA FROELKING, and a middle-aged friend of Carlotta's, HERBERT WATERBURY.

Waterbury takes the two women to ADOREE's little supper club the first night he meets May. There they are joined by DAN SPRAGUE, an admirer of Carlotta's.

May accidentally drops her handbag, and when Waterbury picks it up and lays it on the table, May's huge roll of bills slips out. Sprague asks her if she has been robbing a bank.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. HERBERT WATERBURY raised his eyes from May's roll of money, and glanced from her to Dan Sprague. There was a queer, twisted smile on his face.

"Imagine that . . . a woman carrying thousands of dollars with her in a flimsy handbag," he said. "Not even in travelers' checks, but in honest-to-gosh money! Doesn't that prove what I said to you the other day, Dan? Remember my telling you that no woman ought to be allowed to handle her own money?" Dan nodded solemnly.

"Is that so?" Carlotta piped up shrilly. "Because I've heard differently! And if there's any better all-money-collector in the country than I am, lead me to her! Any day I'm not perfectly able to handle my own money. I'll tell you boys know about it by radio. Station HAN?"

"What do you mean 'Station HAN'?" Dan Sprague asked.

"Hard as nails . . . that's me," Carlotta answered cheerfully. "I'm a regular little Hetty Green under my soft, sweet, smiling exterior."

She broke off, suddenly, and stared across the restaurant with her china-blue eyes.

"Oh, look who's here!" she exclaimed. "Your old friend, the vamp, Dan!"

May turned, and saw a slim young woman who threaded her way toward them through the tables that packed the white room.

As she came, she looked straight at Dan Sprague with her large dark eyes, and smiled, showing prominent white teeth. Her skin was almost white as they, and her straight black hair was gathered into a knot at the back of her neck.

"Who is she?" May asked Waterbury, in an undertone.

"Her name is Francie Lee, and she's one of Adoree's hostesses," Waterbury said quickly, as the girl came up to the table.

Carlotta pursed up her babyish lips, and stared down into her glass of gin-gingerale with the rapid look of a crystal gazer.

May could see that she was intensely jealous of the thin, black-haired woman, and that she was not going to speak to her if she could help it.

But Dan and Herby jumped up and greeted the "hostess" with enthusiasm.

"Come on over here, Fran, and I'll give you the low-down on this Volstead stuff," Dan Sprague said. He put out his hand and pulled a chair from the table behind him. "How are you feeling tonight? Rather 'Bardwell'?"

Francie Lee shook her head. She looked from May's face to that of Carlotta, who sat as one frozen. And she backed away from the table.

"No thanks, Daniel," she said. "I have a heavy supper date with three Chicago gentlemen who are in the bone-button trade, and I must be my bubbling self for them . . ."

As she spoke, the lights all over the cafe began to go out, cluster by cluster. And only a great yellow spotlight shone in the middle of the dance floor like a sun.

Into it floated the figure of a red-haired woman in a billowy white silk dress. This was Adoree, herself.

May turned in her chair and looked at her curiously. . . . this tiny woman who had made a small fortune out of the tiny restaurant.

There was a tired look in Adoree's painted eyes, and the broad smile on her scarlet mouth was strained.

"She's old!" May thought, and pitied her.

"You know, of course, that she has a grown son," the low voice of Herby Waterbury said in her ear.

"She looks old enough to be somebody's grandmother," May answered.

the result.

Whether this is the explanation for Bryan's death is a question. The fact remains, however, that heavy eating often does cause apoplexy and death, and persons with hearty appetites should be careful.

Bryan ate his noon meal, and died while sleeping a few hours later. Apoplexy is caused by a blood clot on the brain, resulting from a burst blood vessel.

And ruptured blood vessels often are caused by an overactivity of the heart, following heavy eating.

The heart is a very sensitive organ, and the stomach seems to be the heart's worst enemy. The stomach lies just beneath the heart, and when filled with gas it is like a small balloon. It lifts up until it interferes with heart action.

To overcome the obstruction the heart must exert itself in proportion to the interference.

When this happens a larger quantity of blood is sent to the brain, a vessel often ruptures and apoplexy is

Into a great yellow spotlight floated the figure of a red-haired woman in a billowy white silk dress. This was Adoree, herself.

Then presently she spoke again. "It's a terrible thing for a woman when she begins to get old," she said wistfully.

Herby laughed. "How do you know? A woman as young as you!" he asked.

May sighed. "Oh, I'm not so young," she answered. "I'm twenty-seven. That's pretty old, isn't it?"

"What would you do if you were forty-five?" the man asked.

May shrugged her graceful shoulders. Her eyes dreamily followed the light, thistledown movements of the dancer.

Then, in the half-darkness, she felt a hand close down warmly over hers, as it lay palm upward in her lap. She started slightly but did not move away.

"You sweet little kid!" she heard Herby whisper. "You're just a kid, aren't you?"

Again he laughed. "To think of your carrying all that money around in your handbag!" he said humorously. "If ever there was a kid trick, that's one. Why don't you put it safely away in a bank? What did you draw it out for, in the first place?"

"I didn't," May answered. "It's some money that my lawyer turned over to me . . ."

She felt a movement beside her, and saw the slender figure of Francie Lee slip away toward the door of the restaurant.

"Speaking of lawyers, reminds me that I ought to hear from mine, soon," broke in Carlotta. "He's down in Missouri collecting three months' back alimony from my former husband. Believe me, if that old boy doesn't crash through with the cash, I sure do run him ragged!"

Just then the lights flashed up again as Adoree whirled out in a little gust of applause. Herbert Waterbury gave May's hand a quick pat before he drew his own away.

The restaurant had slowly filled with the gay midnight crowd. And May looked around her curiously at the women with their marcelled hair.

their bright silk evening coats, their jewels.

Somewhat they all looked alike. Surely they all wore a uniform—the uniform of Prosperity. And in their powdered faces, their eyes had no more life than the shoe-button eyes of a rag doll.

Near the door, Francie Lee sat with the Chicago button manufacturers . . . heavy-jowled men, seriously intent upon having a good time.

May felt a sudden pity for Francie Lee. What a life she was! To make a living by being a "hostess" in a place like this one that belonged to Adoree!

To be pleasant and entertaining, night after night, to heavy-jowled, middle-aged men! To have to listen to their dull, doubtful jokes! To earn a living by taking tips from these men!

She looked at Francie Lee's colorless, thin face with the stamp of worldly wisdom upon it. And then another face flashed into her mind—the fresh-colored, happy face of Gloria Gregory as she bent over her sleeping baby!

The women, like Gloria, who settled down and had their children. . . . Were they, after all, the only women who knew the meaning of happiness?

Or was the greatest joy to be wrung from a fancy-free, footloose life? These Nomads around her in the restaurant . . . these hotel expatriates . . . were they happy?

"I don't know," May confessed to herself. "I don't know."

But she had set her feet upon the open road that might lead to the very rim of the world, for all she knew. And she meant to follow it.

Somewhere there must be a by-path that would not be a blind alley. A by-path that would lead to happiness, or, at least, to something very like happiness. To ease and leisure.

She turned suddenly to Herbert Waterbury.

"Let's go home," she said. "I think I'm tired of all this. And I didn't get much sleep last night."

"You should have taken that little drink I offered you," he answered. "Nothing like a touch of hardware when you're feeling low."

In the dimly-lighted hall outside the supper-room, May and Carlotta waited while the men retrieved their hats from the pretty check girl.

May heard Dan Sprague say something to her in a low tone as he took his hat and coat from her.

"He does that to make me jealous," Carlotta whispered to May. "But I just pretend that I'm deaf, dumb and blind."

She laughed, but the eyes that were fastened on Sprague's face were dark with misery.

Suddenly she walked over to him and took him by the lapel of his coat. "Come on, aggravating papa!" she cried.

"Why, she's really in love with him!" May told herself. She wouldn't have believed that the soft pink mask of Carlotta's face covered an emotion so deep as the feeling she certainly had for Dan Sprague.

Waterbury took May's arm as they stepped out into the night, and Carlotta and Dan dropped slowly behind them. Once dropped slowly behind them, they never came back.

He waited for a moment before he answered. "I honestly don't know," he said at last.

"Tell me about Francie Lee," May asked. "What is this hostess job of hers, anyway?"

"Well, it's a rather new profession for actresses out of work," Waterbury explained. "They hire themselves out to these supper clubs, and their job is to entertain the men patrons. . . . But, look here, I don't want to talk about the Francie Lees. I want to talk about . . . you!"

He drew her very close to him, holding her arm above the elbow.

"Doesn't it seem to you that we've known each other longer than just a few hours?" he asked.

May shook her head. "No," she said. "I feel that I don't know you at all . . . as, of course, I don't."

Waterbury laughed almost without a sound.

"Well, then, I'm going to tell you something about myself," he said. "I'm just Herbert Waterbury, plain and honest. And because I am plain and honest, I'm going to ask you something. Won't you give me that money of yours to take care of, until you decide what you want to do with it?"

A New Type of Service

Employees of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), who have taken advantage of the Company's Stock Purchasing Plan in 1925, will get their stock at $62.00 per share, regardless of what the price may be during the remainder of the year.

This is the average market price for a six months' period ending March 31, 1925.

In reality, Standard Oil employees get their stock at $41.33 per share, as the Company adds, as a gift, 50c to every dollar invested by the employee.

Regarding the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) Stock Purchasing Plan, Mr. O. A. Mather, in the Chicago Tribune, says:

"Behind this lies a story of relations to employees almost unique in American industry.

"Four years ago the Standard Oil directors translated into action their belief that employees would be more efficient and loyal if they were stockholders and also that they should be permitted to share the profits. While this was not a new idea, the plan worked out by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was somewhat of a departure from custom.

"The directors announced a five year stock acquisition plan whereby employees might subscribe for stock to the extent of one-fifth of their annual salaries. This constituted a partial payment plan. But as an additional incentive and reward the directors stated that for every dollar put in by an employee the company would add 50 cents. As the price of the stock each year is based on the average market price for a preceding period, the company, in effect, is selling stock to its employees at two-thirds of its market value."

The result of making the employee ownership of stock attractive has been to promote harmony, encourage industrious efficiency and to harbor contentment among the employees; in short, to instill and nourish the spirit of service, which reacts to the distinct benefit of the patrons of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in the ten Middle Western states where the Company is straining every nerve and fibre to serve thirty million people with petroleum products of high quality, when and where they need them.

Church Advertising is Advocated by Preacher

"Every church should have a fund for newspaper advertising and every preacher should be taught the first principles of journalism. The time is coming when the church editor will have more space than the sporting editor. The next great revival will come when the press sets itself to redeem the world. Every preacher should cooperate with the newspaper. It is his best friend."—Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith, before Methodist Regional Church council, St. Paul.

SO SIMPLE

"He asked the speedy young spark. And she said with a grin, As she powdered her chin: 'I keep all the boys in the dark.'"

"I am You ~ at Seventy-four"

"I didn't think you WOULD know me, John. . . I AM different. . . a trifle seedy here and there. . . a bit frayed about the elbows. But you SHOULD know me. . . I am YOU at seventy-four!

"Shocked, eh? Most young fellows would be if they could see themselves at seventy-four. But they can't. They see old age through the gold-tinted glasses of youth. They're too close to the luxuries of thirty to see the necessities of seventy. They think of increased income merely as an excuse for increased outgo.

"Yes, John, I am you at seventy-four. . . feeling like an old book. . . dust-covered, yellowed with age. . . up on a shelf. . . just waiting. . . living with and ON a son-in-law whom you will not meet for fifteen years."
